EDWARD FRANCIS AHEARN

"Baldy"

Intramural basketball (2, 3, 4); Guidance Council (4).

"Baldy" seems to be a very quiet fellow, but just wait until you know him! Although he has not taken part in club activities, he has made up for it in the field of sports. We don't know what his plans are for the future, but his classmates wish him luck.

LORRAINE MARGUERITE AKER

"Rainy"

Intramural basketball (2, 3, 4); Tennis (2, 3, 4); Student Council (3); Guidance Council (3); Art Club (4); Glee Club (3, 4); Valentine Dance Committee (3); Gregg Theory Certificate (4); Gregg Progress Pin (4); Gregg 60, 80 Certificates (4).

"Rainy's" pleasing personality easily accounts for her popularity among her classmates. She has been very active in athletics and she has also maintained a good scholastic standing.

MARGUERITE PUFFER ALGER

"Greta"

Pro Merito (4); Intramural basketball (2, 3, Captain 4); Varsity basketball (Honorary Captain 4); Gregg Progress Pin (4); Gregg Theory Certificate (4); Gregg 60 Certificate (4).

"Greta" is that vivacious blonde who has been very active in sports as well as high in her scholastic achievement. Her cheery smile shows her sunny disposition and has made her a friend of all her classmates.

CARLYLE PERKINS ALLEN

"Perkins"

Although "Perkins" is an extremely quiet person, he has made many warm friends in G.H.S. He hasn't had much time for extra-curricular activities, but whatever he undertakes, his classmates know, will be successful.

MASON BATCHELDER ARIAL

"Buck"

"Buck" and his car have been common sights around school, especially in the rear near the General Metal Shop. His friendly attitude and cooperation have made "Buck" a friend of all who know him.

JOHN LEIGHTON ATWOOD

"Junior"

Pro Merito (President 4); Football (Spring Manager 2); Intramural basketball (4); Exponent (2); Sophomore Reception (3); Valentine Dance Committee (3); Commencement Dance Committee (3, 4); Class Show Committee (3); "Growing Pains" (4); "The Bishop Misbehaves" Ticket Committee (4); Dramatic Club (2); Camera Club (2); Hi-Y (3, Vice-President 4); Guidance Council (President 3); Student Council (3); Silver G (4).

A cheery smile and witty quips are "Junior's" most outstanding characteristics. In spite of his numerous extra-curricular activities he has maintained a high place on the scholastic records.

MARY GENEVIEVE AUMAND

"Gigi"

"Campus Capers" (3); Drill Corps (3); Glee Club (3, 4); Alpha Beta Pi (3, 4).

A ready smile and a cheery greeting make many friends for "Gigi." She has been active in the Glee Club, but that does not hinder her outside activities we are told. Best of luck, "Gigi."

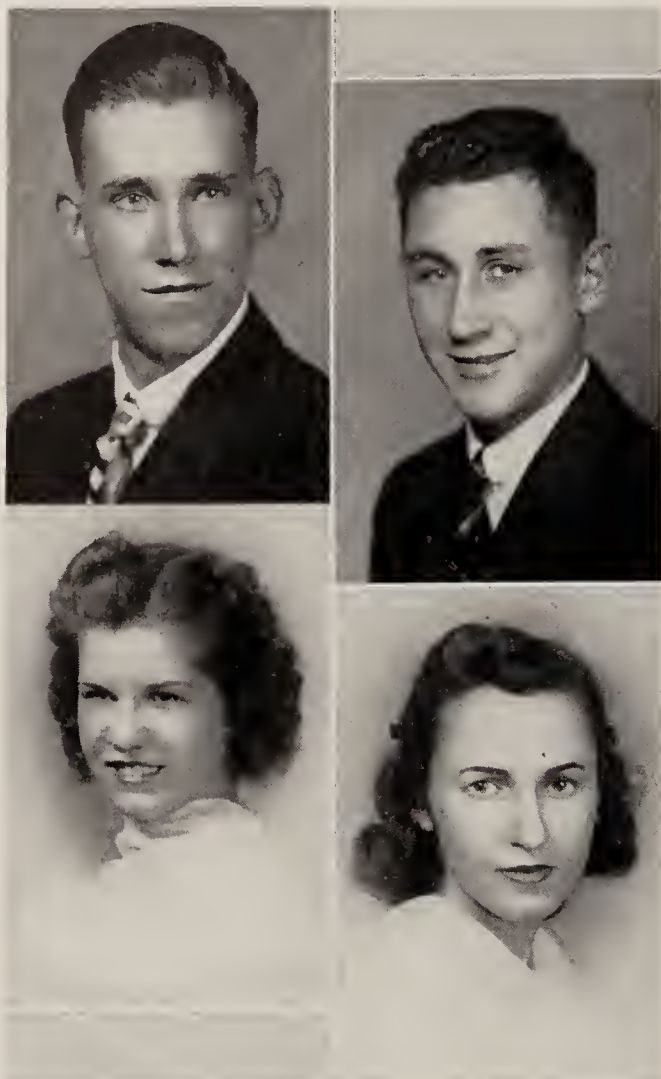

ATHAL ANN AYERS

"Athal"

Student Council (3); Delta Sigma Rho (2, 4, Treasurer 3); Archery (2); Orchestra (2); "Growing Pains" Costume Committee (4); Intramural basketball (2).

Athal is the past Worthy Advisor of the Greenfield Order of the Rainbow and has been active in extra-curricular activities. Her genial and friendly manner has won her many friends and will continue to do so at Colby Junior College next year.

RAYMOND FRANCIS BABITS

"Ray"

Stamp Club (3); Camera Club (3, 4).

"Ray" is that tall, shy boy who hails from Room 14. His chief interests, stamps and photography, have occupied most of his time, but he has also done well in school. Although very quiet he is liked by all who know him.

WILLIAM PAUL BABITS

"Will"

Hockey (3, 4); Intramural basketball (2, 3, 4); Baseball (2); Hi-Y (3, 4); Commercial Club (Secretary 3).

"Will" is a typical outdoor man, but at the same time is exceedingly quiet. He is well-liked by his classmates who sincerely appreciate his work in athletics. He is known by everyone as a swell sport.

GLADYS BERNICE BANNACH

"Wadz"

"Wadz" is one of the quietest girls in our class. She and chum "Blondie" have been inseparable during their three years of high school. Some outside interest seems to have captured her, for she has not taken part in any school activities. However, we are all proud to have had "Wadz" as one of our classmates and all wish her loads of luck.

SYLVIA RUTH BARGER

"Syl"

Pro Merito (3, 4); Exponent (4); Year Book Staff (Associate Editor 4); Sophomore Dance Committee (3); "Growing Pains" Costume Committee (4); Delta Sigma Rho (2, 3, Vice-President 4); Student Council (3); Silver G (4).

"Syl" has proved her competence and efficiency in many fields of work, especially in her management of Girl Scout activities. Quiet and retiring, she may be counted on as an ever-present help in trouble. She plans to go on to college, and her personality is bound to carry her far.

ALICIA VIRGINIA BARNES

"Dimples"

Intramural basketball (2, 3, 4); Art Club (4).

"Dimples" is a gay, fun-loving girl. She has won many friends in her three years of high school. Her plans are uncertain, but knowing "Dimples" as we do, some day she may become a second Maxine Sullivan. G.H.S. will miss "Dimples'" gay laughter and frolic, and she has assured us she will doubly miss G.H.S.

LENA MARY BARRY

"Lena"

Guidance Council (4); Gregg Penmanship Pin (4).

"Lena," that sweet damsel of Room 14, is one of the most dependable girls of our class. She has served on the Senior Guidance Council faithfully and was awarded a pin in shorthand. "Lena's" one desire is to become a hairdresser, and we're sure she'll become one of the best.

RUSSELL MERRILL BASSETT

"Russ"

Basketball (2, 3, 4).

Some outside attraction has taken "Russ'" interest from school and its activities. He is known for his brilliance and wit. "Russ" is an accomplished skater and spends much of his time at the Gables. Maybe some day "Russ" will represent the U. S. in the Olympics as a skater.

BEATRICE LILLIAN BEAULAC

"Bea"

Intramural basketball (2, 3); Glee Club (2, 3); Dramatic Club (2, 3).

"Bea" is a cute little Senior in Room 14. She can always be seen around the corridors with her chum Barbara. "Bea" is one of the quiet members of our class, but whatever field "Bea" will enter we are sure she will always come out on top.

ALBERT LOUIS BEAULIEU

"Al"

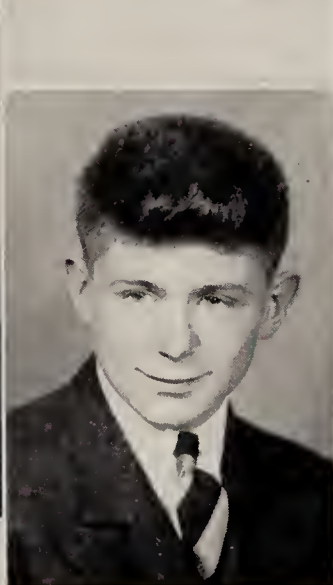

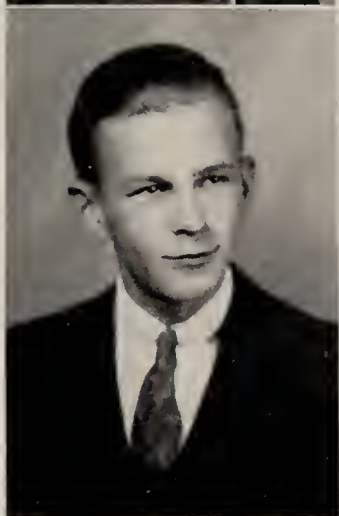

Football (3, 4); Gregg Theory Certificate (4); Gregg Penmanship Pin (4); Gregg Progress Pin (4); Gregg 60 and 80 Certificates.

"Al" is a tall easy-going Senior from Room 14. Ardent football fans will remember him as one of the hard-working players on the team. "Al" hopes to be a secretary some day soon. Good luck, "Al."

GLENNA MAY BECK

"Becky"

"Becky's" cheerful smile and good humor have helped many a pupil in time of woe. "Becky" hails from Millers and is a favorite among the Class of '39. She has centered all of her interests on a certain "Red," which accounts for her lack of interest in school activities.

STEVEN JOSEPH BEDNARSKI

"Peanut"

Intramural basketball (3, 4); Track (4); Commercial Club (3).

Who doesn't know "Peanut"? He can always be seen around the corridors talking to some miss. "Peanut" is known for his tricks, jokes, and friendly smile. He hopes to become a grade A salesman, and we know he'll be one, for "Peanut" has what it takes.

DONALD JENNISON BEEBE

"Don"

Football (3, 4); Intramural basketball (3, 4); Basketball (Assistant Manager 2, 3, Manager 4); Tennis (4); Orchestra (2).

"Don" has been one of the most popular boys of the Class of '39. He will be missed not only by G.H.S. but also the feminine underclassmen, particularly as he has become famous as an example of what the well-dressed young man should wear. "Don" is interested in forestry.

JOHN FRANCIS BEHAYLO

"Johnny"

Intramural basketball (2, 3, 4); Camera Club (2); Stamp Club (Vice President 3).

"Johnny" is one of the silent type and would prefer to be out with the fellows rather than participating in extra-curricular activities. Yet he has acquired many friends during his school life.

BARBERA JULIA BELDING

"Barb"

Intramural basketball (4); "Growing Pains" (4); "Hist. She's a Man" (4); Delta Sigma Rho (2, 3, 4); Glee Club (2).

The perpetual smile will always be remembered and associated with the talkative, good-natured friendly Barbera. She has made many friends with her smile and the habit of discussing the day's events with the girls.

JOHN JOSEPH BERCHMAN

"Jack"

Baseball (2, 3, 4); Football Business Manager (4); Intramural basketball (2, 3, 4); Guidance Council (2).

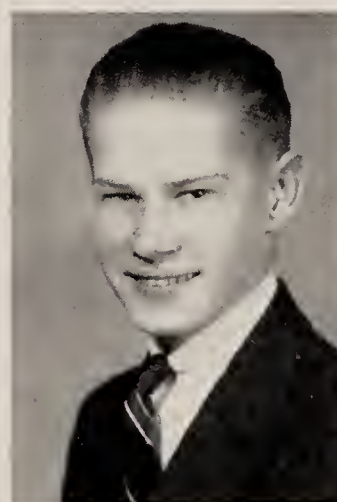

"Jack" has been one of the greatest sport fans the class ever had. He has been the right hand man of the "Ump" for every sports contest the teams here have had for the past few years. He is one of those boys who spend all of their time on an athletic field.

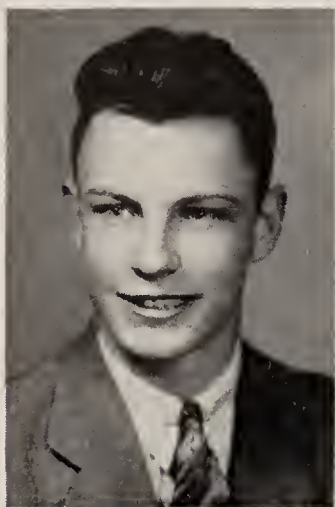

ADA DELENA BESSETTE

"Butch"

Intramural basketball (2, 3); Alpha Beta Pi (4); Art Club (3, Secretary 4); Commercial Club (3, 4); Drill Corps (3, Assistant Drum Major 4); Dance Committee (3); Student Council (3); Guidance Council (3); Silver G (4).

Ada is one of our more fun-loving members. When laughter is heard, look for Ada as the cause. She is a "jitterbug" and has provided much entertainment for us.

EDWARD DICKINSON BILLINGS

"Josh"

Intramural baseball (2); "Growing Pains" (4).

Easy-going. "Josh's" famous smile and nonchalant walk will always be remembered. He is the type that consistently uses his initiative to gain a higher standing in life. His quaint drawl will always be associated with the burly policeman, his part in the Senior play.

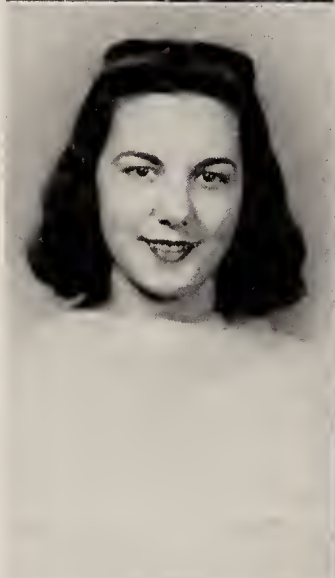

DOROTHY JUNE BLANKER

"Dot"

"Hist, She's a Man" (4); Delta Sigma Rho (2, 3, 4); Pro Merito (3, 4); Archery Club (2).

"Dot" has been a "right-hand man" in Girl Scout activities and has proved most valuable in this work. She also has been a constant member of the Honor Roll.

MARY ANN BOMPASTORE

"Bomper"

Exponent (4); Year Book Staff (4); Art Club (4); Drill Corps (3, 4); Glee Club (4); "Hearts of the Campus" (4); Spring Concert (4); New England and State Competitions (4).

"Bomper" has been active in the musical organizations and on "The Exponent." She has always shown her cooperation and willingness to do a good job in whatever field she is. "Bomper" is usually seen with her friend Mildred, and together they make a great team.

HARTLEY MARTIN BOSWORTH

"Bosy"

Intramural basketball (2); Intramural baseball (2); Pro Merito (3, 4); "Hist, She's a Man" (4); Stamp Club (2); Boys' Glee Club (4).

"Bosy" is that tall, red-haired fellow who has captured many feminine hearts during his years in high school. He has been active in both athletics and extra-curricular affairs, and with this foundation he's bound to get a long way.

GENEVA MAY BROOKS

"Bridget"

Commercial Club (3, 4); Art Club (3, 4); Pro Merito (4); Gregg 60 - 80 - 100 Certificates (4); Gregg Penmanship Pin (4); Gregg Theory Certificate (4).

"Bridget" has been very active in commercial work and is one of our best pupils. Although she is very quiet, she has a host of friends, and a pleasing personality which is bound to help her to success in anything she undertakes.

MARION JENNIE BRUCE

"Bruce"

Exponent (2); Year Book Staff (4); Student Council (3).

"Bruce" is very domesticated and a member of the Vocational class. She hasn't had many activities in school but has had plenty outside, among them the "boy-friend."

ETHEL LUCILLE BRUNELLE

"Tot"

"Tot" is a member of the Vocational class, and is an all-round sport. She has made many a laugh in her classes, and the days will be dull when she leaves. Lots of luck, "Tot."

GEORGE KORNSTADT BURGESS

"Georgie"

Pro Merito (3, 4).

If brains were money, "Georgie" would be a millionaire. His ready willingness to help anyone in need has won him many friends. We know that his quiet yet determined manner will carry him a long way.

ROBERT EMMET MICHAEL BURNS

"Bunt"

Basketball (2, 3, 4); Baseball (2, 3, 4).

"Bunt" is one of our boys who has not taken much interest in extra-curricular activities, but he has certainly made up for that with his outstanding work on the basketball floor and on the baseball diamond.

EDWARD LELAND CAIRNS

"Cairns"

Pro Merito (4); Boys' Glee Club (3, 4); Band (2); Silver G (3, 4).

"Cairns" is one of those fellows you never see angry, and although he isn't very athletically minded he's right on the top of the scholastic record. Here's hoping "Eddie's" plans for Tufts will be fulfilled.

MARY JEAN CARPENTER

"Mer"

Intramural basketball (3); Yearbook Staff (4); Dance Committee (3, 4); Class Treasurer (4); "Growing Pains" (4); Student Council (3); Guidance Council (3, Vice President 4); Delta Sigma Rho (Secretary 2, 3, 4); Pro Merito (3, 4); Silver G (4).

Who can forget "Mary Jean," that attractive girl who is so popular among her friends? Her easy-going nonchalant manner has won her the way into the hearts of many of her classmates. She is one of those girls who can participate in extra-curricular activities as well as maintain a high place on the scholarship records.

ELIZABETH ALETHA CARRIER

"Betty"

Intramural basketball (3, 4); Commercial Club (3).

"Betty" entered G.H.S. in her Junior year from Claremont. She is an athletic girl and prefers outside activities rather than extra-curricular affairs. She is well known for her ability on the basketball floor, and altogether, is an all-round good sport.

HOWARD PERCY CARRIER, Jr.

"H.P."

Exponent (4); Year Book Staff (4); Dance Committee (3); "Growing Pains" (4); "Hearts of the Campus" (4); Camera Club (2, President 3, 4); "Highlights of G.H.S." (3); "G.H.S. Daze" (4).

"H.P." is the guy with the camera complex who, with the rest of the "gang," is always seen at the football games and everywhere else taking pictures. Just this year "H.P." demonstrated his dramatic ability opposite his constant partner "Glo." "Howie" should go far and we shall be glad to say, "I knew him when."

JAMES ORVILLE CARROLL

"Jimmy"

Pro Merito (4).

"Jimmy" is one of the few quiet and bashful boys in our class. He hasn't found time to break away from his studies and participate in the extra-curricular activities. However, when he broadcast for a Lion's Club Question Bee, he did his part for the team. Here's luck to you, "Jimmy."

DAVID LYMAN CARSON

"Kit"

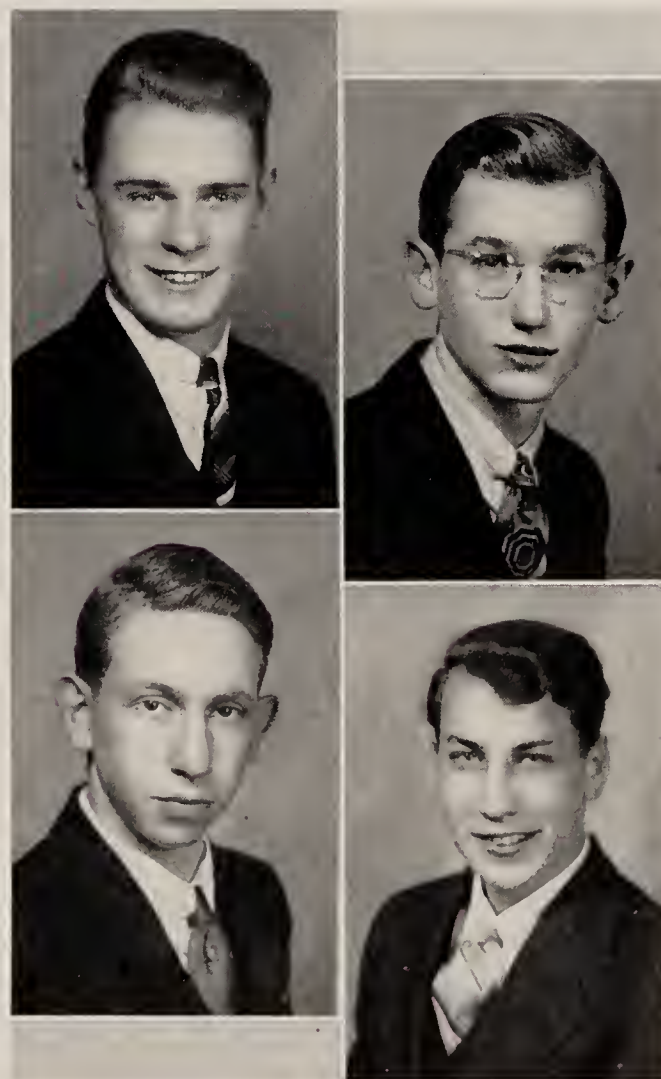

Gregg 60, 80 Certificates (4); Gregg Progress Pin (4). Commercial Club (3, Treasurer 4).

A quiet boy with a lot on his mind is "Kit." He doesn't go in for the fairer sex, so he and "Georgie" Burgess are constant companions. He's bound to find the right one some day, and then wait and see. Here's to your future, "Davie."

RUSSELL JOSEPH CARTER

"Russ"

During the past year "Russ" has been an active member of the General Metal Shop and has made an enviable reputation as a sheet metal worker. His personality and willing cooperation should carry "Russ" far.

KATHERINE MARY CASEY

"Snookie"

Gregg Progress Pin (4); 20th Century Typewriting Pin (4); Student Council (4); Guidance Council (Secretary 4); Sympathy Fund (Chairman 4); "Co-ed's Night Out" (2); "Campus Capers" (3); "Hearts of the Campus" (4); Winter Concert (3); Glee Club (2, 3, 4); Alpha Beta Pi (3, 4); Drill Corps (3); Silver G (4).

"Snookie" is a happy-go-lucky girl with a twinkle in her eye and a merry "hello" for everyone. Her time in school has been nearly filled with chorus, but when she is not in school one is likely to find her at the Girl's Club. Here's hoping "Snookie," that you always get as much fun out of life as your optimism is getting for you now.

DOROTHY MARIE CASH

"Dottie"

Intramural basketball (4); "Hearts of the Campus" (4); Winter Concert (4); Art Club (4); Glee Club (4); Drill Corps (3, 4).

How well we all know that giggling, dark-haired Senior who can always see a funny side to everything. She possesses the ability to take a joke as well as "crack" one and because of this she has made a host of friends at G.H.S. Best wishes of the Class of '39 go with her.

EILEEN MARY CASH

"Eileen"

Drill Corps (3, 4).

Eileen has not taken part in many school activities but nevertheless is well known and liked by all her classmates. She always has a cheery smile or remark for everyone. Eileen is undecided about her future, but we all know she will succeed in life.

DOROTHY MAY CATE

"Dolly"

Intramural basketball (Captain 4); Winter Concert (3, 4); Glee Club (4); State and New England Competitions (3, 4); A capella Choir (4).

No one can forget "Dolly," an attractive brunette from the "little town of Gill." Her main interest is hairdressing and she will be sure to succeed in it because of her winning personality and sunny disposition helped along by a few rosy blushes now and then.

ESTA MAE CATLIN

"Esta Mae"

Pro Merito (4); Class Vice President (3, 4); Exponent (2, 3, Circulation Manager 4); Year Book Staff (4); Guidance Council (Secretary 4); "Co-Ed's Night Out" (2); "Campus Capers" (3); "Hearts of the Campus" (4); Dramatic Club (2); Alpha Beta Pi (3, 4); Silver G (3, 4); Assistant Drum Major (3); Glee Club (2, 3, Treasurer 4); New England and State Competitions (2, 3, 4).

Esta has been very active and successful during her three years' stay in G.H.S. She is noted for her pleasing personality and captivating smile. Though some of us may lose sight of her in the ensuing years, we may be sure that none will forget her.

GLORIA MONICA CERRATO

"Glo"

Pro Merito (3, 4); Year Book Staff (4); Exponent (2); Sophomore Guidance Council (2); Class Vice-President (3); Guidance Council (3); Dance Committee (2); Student Council (4); Valentine Dance Committee (4); "Growing Pains" (4); Alpha Beta Pi (2, 3, 4); Silver G (3, 4); Dramatic Club (2).

How can anyone forget the sweet disposition and the friendly smile that "Glo" possesses. She is very popular and well liked among all her acquaintances, both boys and girls. "Glo" is one of those people who can enjoy themselves in school and at the same time be excellent students. We feel justified in our hopes for her future.

RICHARD CYRIL CHABOT

"Dick"

Intramural basketball (3, 4); Band (3, 4).

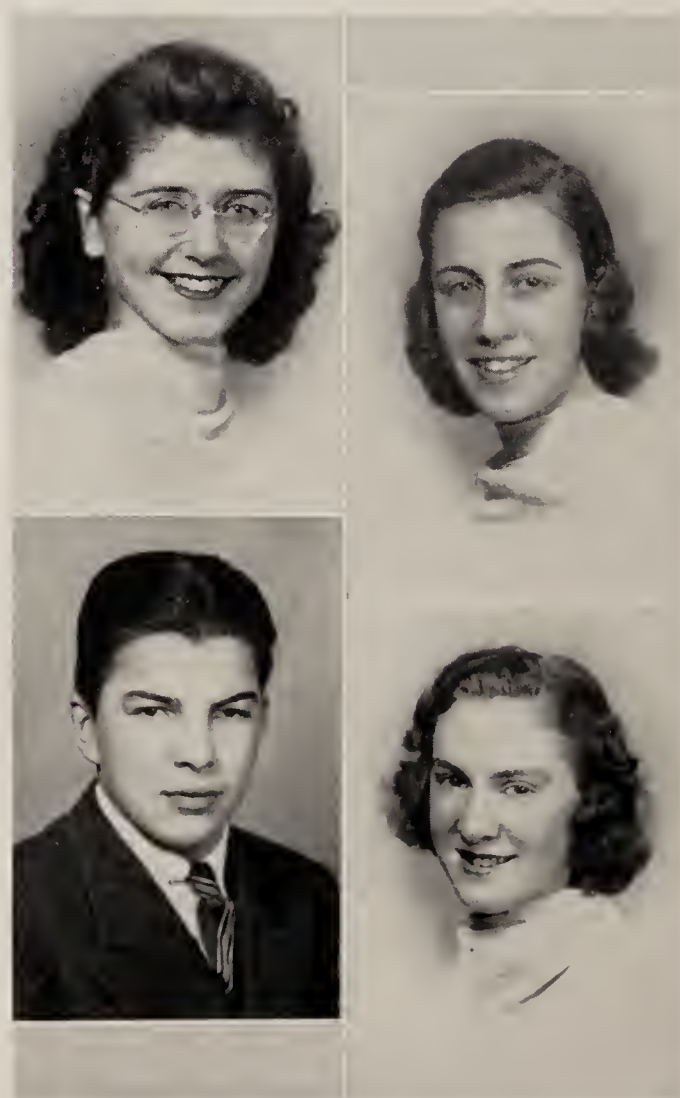

In his short time here "Dick" has made amazing progress as well as many friends. His willingness to help predicts a long and profitable career. It is certain that the memory of this dark young man will be long and affectionately kept.

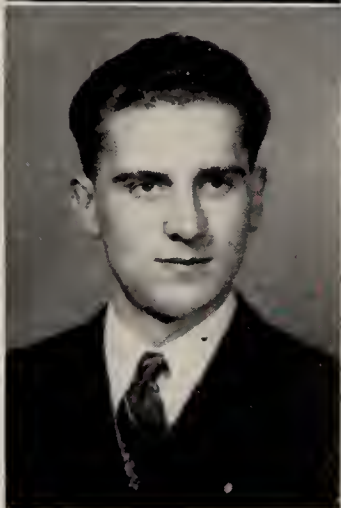

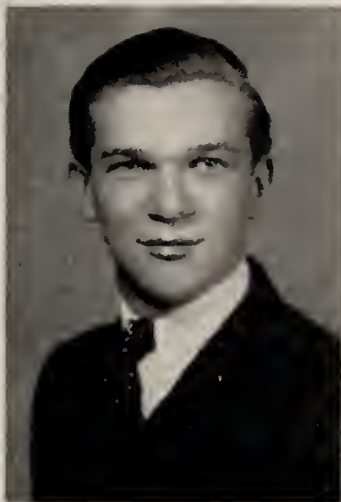

RUTH ELIZABETH CHAPIN

"Chip"

Pro Merito (3, 4); Dance Committee (4); "Growing Pains" (4); Delta Sigma Rho (2, 3, 4); Silver G (4); Assembly Pianist (4).

"Chip," our assembly pianist, has made many friends in her three years' stay in G.H.S. Her friendly, cheerful attitude has made many of us proud to claim her for our pal. We are losing "Chip" to Tufts, but her Alma Mater will always be G.H.S.

BERNARD ROLAND CHEVALIER

"Chevy"

20th Century Typewriting Pin (4); Guidance Council (4); "Campus Capers" (3); Stamp Club (3); Glee Club (3).

"Chevy" is a studious, good-natured Senior from Room 15. He can always be seen talking and helping some of his lady friends in class time. "Chevy's" future work isn't known yet, but we know he is the type to succeed.

RALPH GILBERT CHICKERING

"Ralph"

Intramural basketball (3).

Ralph is a Senior who seems to keep things well to himself. Although he hasn't taken part in many school activities he is well liked and known by all. There's no doubt that what the future plans for him he will meet with success.

ROBERT RUSSELL CLAPP

"Russ"

Guidance Council (3); Commencement Decoration Committee (3).

WILLIAM JEROME CONWAY

"Bill"

"Bill" has impressed everyone with his willingness to work by his efficient management of the football team and his general assistance in Mr. Nichols' office. He has proved himself a good friend, especially among his pals in the General Metal Shop.

"Letty"

Delta Sigma Rho (2); Glee Club (3); "Campus Capers" (3); Winter Concert (3); State and New England Competitions (3); Drill Corps (3); Alpha Beta Pi (3, 4); 20th Century Typewriting Pin (4).

VIRGINIA MAE CORBIN

"Ginny"

OLIVE FLORENCE SMITH

"Smitty"

Football Dance Committee (4); Delta Sigma Rho (3, 4); Guidance Council (3).

WILLIAM CLYDE SMITH

"Bill"

Intramural basketball (3); Basketball (2); Track (2, 3).

Whenever you see a tall noisy person in the midst of much excitement you may be sure you've met "Bill." He has been out working during the last part of the year, which accounts for the many quiet days in the Cabinet Shop. His pleasing personality will carry him a long way.

DOROTHY BELLE SNOW

"Dot"

Intramural basketball (2, 3); Archery Club (2); Art Club (4).

"Dot" is one of the more nimble-footed members of the class whose nonchalant and care-free manner make her an outstanding girl. She has been an excellent player in Intramural basketball and is a good sport generally.

KENNETH HAROLD SOMES

"Kenny"

Intramural basketball (3, 4).

Curly-headed "Kenny" is the strong silent type. His quiet observation and direction have helped us progress through school to our present status, however. His optimism has cheered us many a time, and we are sure it will carry him far.

CHRISTINE ELAINE STANTON

"Chris"

Intramural basketball (2, 3, 4).

"Chris" is more quiet and conservative than many of her friends, but despite her preference for remaining in the background she has made many friends. She is always smiling and cheerful and we shall not easily forget her.

FLORENCE ELIZABETH STRANGE

"Dempsie"

Intramural basketball (3, 4); Art Club (4).

A good nature, a love for fun, plus a little bit of mischief make "Dempsie" the friend of all, and what's more, we know it will assure her a successful career in business.

"Bette," that well-dressed Senior, seems to be musically inclined. She has appeared in all of our musical functions. "Bette" is well known for her gay manner and nonchalant air.

GEORGE LAWRENCE TEAGUE

"George"

Although George in Room 26 has not shown much interest in any activities during his school life, his outside cooperation has gathered him many happy friends. His ability to be in the midst of activity, especially of the noisy variety, has made him a regular visitor to Room 23. However, his good personality has helped him out of many scrapes.

ROLLENA FRANCES TETREULT

"Tate"

Basketball Manager (4).

"Tate" is quite talkative and tries to get acquainted with everyone. She is always willing to help them with things that they don't understand. Probably the most important thing to "Tate" is dancing. She is very fond of this recreation and can be seen at many dances.

"Eddie," or "Tert" as he is sometimes called by his friends, is an amiable young fellow who always has a broad grin on his face. His fine personality and candid humor make him popular with the girls of the class, and he never has to go out alone at night. He's a regular "feller" and can always see something good in everything.

RUSSELL MELVIN TRUDEAU

"Mel"

Basketball (2).

"Mel" may be small, but he makes up for his size in the variety of entertainment he can think of and take part in. He has been undecided as to his class membership for quite a while, but we are glad to welcome him back to the fold. His ambition is chemical engineering, and we're willing to bet he'll be a big noise in that field.

PHYLLIS RUTH TRUMBLE

MARY CHRISTINE VARILLY

"Mae"

Gregg Progress Pin (4).

Although "Mae" is rather shy, she attracts attention by the wistful expression in her lovely, big dark eyes. She has shown her interest in school activities by being always in the audience rather than an active participant, but her help could always be depended on.

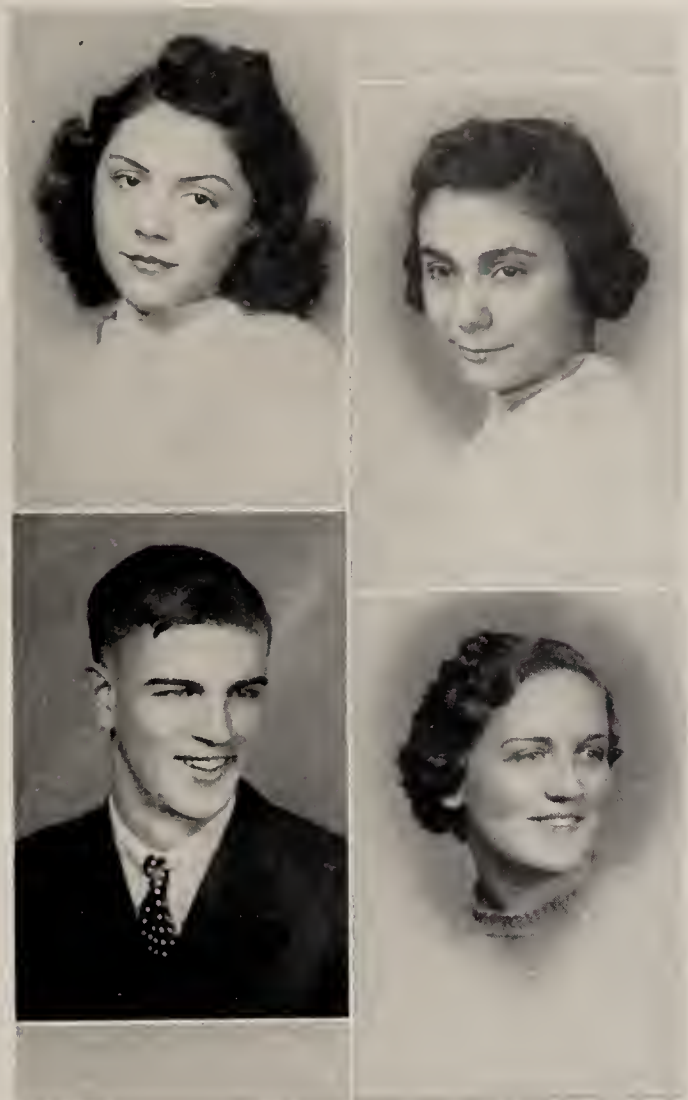

HARRY WILLIAM VETTERLING

"Harold"

JOHN EDWARD WALKER

"Johnny"

Football (2, 3, 4); Student Council (2); Guidance Council (2); Hi-Y (2, 3, 4); Class Vice President (4).

Our popular "Johnny" is a fine athlete and has shown his ability in almost every sport. It was no surprise to his Greenfield admirers when he was chosen as a member of the Western Massachusetts Scholastic Football Team. With his personality "Johnny" will go far.

LILLIAN LEOLA WEEKS

"Leach"

"Leach" is a quiet girl interested in Vocational work. She hasn't participated in the school activities but is pretty active outside of school. She has one special interest in the little town of Colrain. How about it, "Leach"?

WARREN NELSON WELCH

"Welchie"

Warren came to us from Montague and has been a quiet and efficient member of the Machine Shop this year. He has not had very much opportunity to make friends outside of the shop group because of his longer hours and commuting. His interest lies chiefly in the Sea Scout movement and he is an enthusiastic boater.

JAMES JOHN WHALEN, Jr.

"Jimmy"

Track Team (4).

"Jimmy" hasn't taken part in many activities, but he is very popular just the same. He is a quiet boy, especially in Art class. Although "Jimmy" doesn't know just what he wants to become, he is sure to be efficient.

WALTER STANLEY WHITE

"Prephonce"

One may find Walter in the corridors at almost any time of day. With his pal Paul he has made himself felt in every class he has attended and has done his share in making a reputation for noise. His favorite pastime is avoiding assembly, but, all in all, Walter has proved himself a very fine fellow.

DORIS EVELYN WILDER

EDWARD GEORGE YOURGA

"Eddie"

Track Team (3); Intramural basketball (2, 3, 4).

Now that "Eddie" has become a dignified Senior, there is only one more thing that he desires even more than being president of the United States and that is to run the 100 yard dash in 9 2-5 seconds.

HAROLD CHARLES ZEINER

"Charles"

Stamp Club (3).

Harold is one of these quiet boys whose interests lie outside G.H.S. Can there be a girl in the case? We hear, also, that Harold has joined the ranks of the employed. Congratulations and the best of luck, Harold.

Remember the Grasses

I was there,
I saw those, his friends and mine,
Whose young and wind-whipped cheeks
Surrendered to the vacant stares
Of older, stronger men.
I heard acutely all their prayers
And fears in one potent, silent requiem.
I saw the bearers clasp the rods,
As reverently as though they took his hands.
I saw two people hatless in the street.
They watched, not knowing whom they mourned,
But mourning from an awe of Death or God.
I saw all this: These people, thinking
Great, uncertain thoughts of love, respect,
And faith. I thought, "Tomorrow they will forget,
I will forget. Life is lost, but living
Must go on. These myriad gaudy flowers
And vague rememberings will replace
The starkness of his face.
In time all is forgot."

I went again, and found the flowers gone.
I nodded, and was sad, until
I saw the grass had knit together all the sods,
Had quickened on the hill.
Then I said, "These are what count,
These are the little thoughts from day to day.
When suddenly on opening a once-shared book,
We see his smile, or when in vigorous
Pursuit of sports, we are stung with swift
Remorse at youth denied."

I stood once in a room where he had stood,
And heard his eager, straining voice, and thought
Perhaps he felt his span was short and Tumbled all his words in spurts of fear so none
Of what he was was left unsaid.
I have turned from that and lived the weeks
Since that long, sad September, knowing only
By the grasses that the quick live with the dead.

President's Address

PARENTS, Teachers and Friends of the Class of 1939:

It is with great pleasure that I fulfill the privileged task of welcoming you this afternoon to our Class Day Exercises. During the program I shall introduce to you certain members of the Class of '39 who have won the right to address you. Some have proved their ability through competition, and others have been selected by the Faculty for their scholarship, character, and leadership merits. However, all are worthy of the honor conferred upon them.

To my Classmates:

During the three years which we have spent together in high school we naturally like to believe we have been transformed from the bewildered Sophomores that we were when we entered to more worldly wise young men and women. However, let us not consider our transformation so great as to warrant our forgetting pleasant memories of high school days. Our varied interests have led us to participate in various activities, some of which may be stepping-stones to future success. We have formed many friendships, both casual and intimate, and in years to come, as we travel the various paths which fate has in store for us, let us pause occasionally to reminisce upon our pleasurable high school activities and friendships. Above all, throughout life let us not only remember the keynote of our high school success, namely our motto — Loyalty, Honor and Scholarship — but also let it serve to spur us on to higher attainments.

In conclusion, I should like to thank you for electing me to represent you during the past three years. I have enjoyed holding these offices and hope that I have carried out the necessary duties to your satisfaction.

— Ralph Glover Gilman, Jr.

Appeal of Reading

WHAT is your conception of the word reading? No doubt some of you instantly think of it as something boring and valueless, only to be endured when occasion demands it. However, this idea is now definitely out-moded. Literature can actually hold interest for all of us. Since the field of books is limitless, persons of various characters may derive enjoyment as well as benefits according to their own distinctive intellectual discernments.

Consider, for instance, the gay, light-hearted sort of person such as you yourself may be. This type of individual usually greets literature with the remark, "Oh, books are too deep and dull for me." Fortunately, due to authors who, contrary to general belief, may have care-free natures, such books as Kaufman's "You Can't Take It With You" are made to order for the felicitous person. Therein is merry, sparkling humor, and it never approaches anything which could be classed as tedious. Such impracticability and eccentricity as this play contains could not fail to appeal to anyone possessing a so-called "funny-bone."

Then again you may be one who eternally seeks excitement and thrills. Opposing the opinion that such a person could not secure interest from reading, Poe's "Tell-tale Heart" aptly disproves this unfounded theory. After perusing this short, terse story, the reader will find his greatest desire for thrills completely satiated. The story's dark, mysterious setting, the horrible relating of murderous doings, the fast-moving action which comes to a violent climax — all aid in figuratively making your hair stand on end. Thereafter, the excitement seeker will enthusiastically agree that books can be decidedly enthralling.

However, veering away from the above mentioned types of individuals, books can hold magnanimous appeal for those of you who delight in the simple beauty of things or for those who possess active imaginations. The former will find the poem, "Trees," by Joyce Kilmer ideally suited to their tastes. What a wealth of sincere beauty may you find in the lines, "A Tree that looks at God all day, and lifts her leafy arms to pray"! Whereas, the imaginative person, after reading Tennyson's "Idylls of the King," will be carried away to the utmost sublimity in the realm of knighthood and gallant deeds. Thus, you will picture vividly to yourselves the bright colors of the knights' raiment and hear the clashing swords of steel against steel in the fiery tournaments. Thus, there are no bounds to the flight of imagination, and this trait may be exercised to its highest capacity in this venerable poem.

Still, one of the greatest appeals books can contain is the quality of realism for those interested in the things connected with you or your own lives. Everyone, more or less, delights in perusing books which are concerned with occurrences or people similar to those with which he has familiar acquaintance. The drama, "Strife," by Galsworthy aptly illustrates this point. From the stirring pages of this play you will meet persons dealing with serious labor problems not unlike the ones with which you and I are apprised. The open, clear-cut style of the author only serves to further this distinct feeling of actuality. Also, together with realistic events, you may come in contact with characters which are sincere and true-to-life. Such a real, honest person is discovered in "Three Rousing Cheers," the autobiography of the newspaper woman, Elizabeth Jordan. Therein you will discern a person, ordinary in manner and accomplished in her profession, just like many friendly people you know. Books are, in this manner, brought nearer to you through this realistic quality, because you, and everyone else, feel more closely associated with the worlds which so nearly resemble your own.

Probably, you, too, are a person who has definite inclinations to travel and view the wonders of nature outside your own locality. Here is where books become invaluable possessions. Through the eyes of people who have been fortunate enough to behold the beauty of distant places, you, who may have been less fortunate, can visit these sites through the medium of books. Naturally your own America is the first land through which you would like to journey. For where else are to be found subjects of such interest as there are here in the United States? We New Englanders will find the story, "Westward Hoboes," by Winifred Dixon, an excellent source to discover knowledge of Texas, New Mexico, Arizona, and other southwestern states. Keen, vivid descriptions serve to bring clearly the joy of nature's beauty spots to you and make you feel as if you yourself were viewing these wonders. An example of this is a short, striking description of Rainbow Bridge in Utah: "From this angle the bridge appeared stupendous, towering above cliffs really much higher, but seeming less by the perspective. Symmetrical and rhythmic of outline, with its massive buttresses in beautiful proportion to the rest, it spans the San Juan River."

From America your travel-urge may lead you to desire to see foreign lands seldom visited by ordinary man. "Safari" by Martin Johnson takes you to the innermost regions of darkness Africa where exciting accounts of his adventures in taking motion pictures of Africa's wild life will satisfy your aspirations for out-of-way places. Also, knowledge of more familiar locations can give equal pleasure to the travel-inclined person. Pearl Buck's "Good Earth" accurately depicts the life of faraway China. Therein lies the dramatic story of the struggling Chinese to attain a livelihood from that everchanging land. No wonder books are so valuable to mankind if they can carry you thousands of miles away within the space of a few minutes!

Of course reading can hold vast interest for the above mentioned reasons, but books were established primarily for the person desirous of augmenting his learning. However, breadth of knowledge need not be gained through arduous study of ponderous text books as many people have the tendency to believe. The proverb, "Life is what you make it," can be equally applied to studying. It is true that information can always be procured by means of textbooks. But, for example, would it not be more enjoyable to learn history by means of an interesting narrative such as Hough's story, "54 - 40 or Fight"? In this way the tale of the settling of our great country is agreeably obtained, not in a "cut and dried" fashion but in one made interesting through a narrative related in a pleasing style. Also, in studying of the changes from one era to another, information may be gained again by way of appealing narration. "The Story of Mexico" by Bank illustrates this thought. This book delightfully tells of the life of Mexico from the time it was an uncivilized, apparently worthless country until, at present day, it has changed its dreary aspect and has become a prosperous, valuable land of promise. Therefore, all knowledge need not be gathered from the depths of weighty volumes.

Thus the appeal of reading may be quickly summed up in Bacon's words: "Reading serves for delight, for ornament, for ability. The crafty condemn it; the simple admire it; the wise use it."

— Gloria Monica Cerrato

Education and How to Attain It

ACCORDING to Professor Whitehead, "Harvard's Modern Plato," education should aim at producing men who possess both culture and expert knowledge in some special direction. In other words, it should prepare one for complete living. There are two concepts in "complete living"—usefulness and happiness. "By usefulness is meant service; that is, any activity which promotes the material or the spiritual interests of mankind. To be happy one must enjoy both his work and his leisure." Our task, therefore, is to investigate these aims a little more fully and show how to attain them in the field of education.

Let us begin with culture, the medium of happiness. Culture, according to modern thinkers, is activity of thought and receptivity to beauty and humane feeling. The responsibility for the attainment of this aim, which creates thinking capacities and bestows happiness upon its possessor, rests on both the student and the teacher. The students are alive, and the purpose of education is to stimulate and guide their self-development. It follows as corollary to the premise that the teacher also should be alive with living thought. He must always beware of inert knowledge and represent the present as a living, dynamic entity—a combination of the past and the future. A few ideas should be proved and studied and then they should be thrown into every combination possible. These ideas should be applied to the present—in the schoolroom and in other activities of the pupil. In this way practice and theory are combined and the desired aim attained. Yet, in many cases, our educational system fails in this respect.

Many institutions have unconsciously adopted the method of teaching that stresses memorizing. With strict discipline students are drilled with inert and uncoordinated knowledge:—proving propositions in geometry with a stereotyped proof with no connection with life; memorizing hundreds of "Toms" and "Dicks" in history with innumerable dates, and learning sets of rules that are never applied. The mind of the student, therefore, is divided into subject-channels, with no coordination. Thus this system many times develops well-informed men, but by no means cultured ones. The task of the teacher and the pupil is to try to coordinate these separate bits of information to the one important subject-matter of education—life. In this way the student will see the significance of these living, dynamic ideas and develop for himself a pattern of life, the stamp of a cultured man or woman. He will be able to think for himself and above all be able to appreciate the little intricacies of nature which give it beauty. Thus he receives happiness out of life.

Now let us investigate the second aim of education, specialization. This aim of education is a little easier to understand and to solve, for this concept is attained at a more advanced stage of a student's life, and the teacher has better and more matured material to work on. Furthermore the student specializes or concentrates in a field where his interests lie. Culture creates thinking apparatus which is utilized in specialization. Prof. Whitehead further states: "What education has to impart is an intimate sense of the power of ideas, of the beauty of ideas, and of the structure of ideas, together with a particular body of knowledge which has peculiar reference to the life of the being possessing it."

The appreciation of the structure of ideas is acquired through specialization in one field. In this aim, theory and practice reach their culmination and original thinking may be the product. Here the student picks out a small plot in the great garden of learning and digs deep instead of just scratching the surface. For we must realize that human knowledge is an unwieldy mass of which only a small portion could be studied and understood.

The next step after original thought or creation is style. By this we mean perfection. After the problem is solved and all of its angles investigated, it must be set forth in the most accurate way possible without any waste of energy. "With style, your power is increased, for your mind is not distracted with irrelevancies, and you are more likely to attain your object," as Professor Whitehead says.

Please do not think that I am referring only to those young people who will be seeking higher education. These same aims and their attainments apply to those who are to pursue normal labor. They, too, have to follow these aims if they are to succeed; they, too, must be cultured and creative if they are to be leaders; they, too, must have incentive, original thinking, and initiative.

These aims of education are not very difficult to grasp and understand, but at times their attainment has not been very successful. Modern educators cannot agree as to where to draw the line between culture and specialization. Many schools adopted the specialization system, but lately they have realized that the pendulum has swung too far on that side, and we see a reform movement to go back to cultured, well-rounded education.

I have discussed the aims of education under the broad concepts only, for I feel that they include every other aim which may be thought of. Modern education was in bad need of a synthesis of these two aims; however, they have slowly but steadily brought about accomplishment of this synthesis. I hope that the present generation may further these great aims and attainments in the educational field as well as in other fields.

The Work of the Girls' Department of the Vocational School

The following selections were originally presented as part of a broadcast over Station WHAI sponsored by the Greenfield Parent-Teachers Association.

CLOTHING WORK

In our clothing work in the vocational class, our aims have been to learn the fundamentals of the construction processes as they are used in various types of clothing; to gain a working knowledge of fabrics as used in clothing and household articles, and to emphasize the value of art principles in relation to the selection and construction of clothing.

First we learn the names of the parts of the sewing machine, then study the operation of both electric and treadle machines, learning how to adjust the tension and length of the stitch, and also how to clean and oil the machine.

Next we learn about the use and alteration of commercial patterns, taking our own measurements and deciding what changes have to be made. When we have learned these steps, we purchase material and make a smock which we use in our foods classes. When the smocks are finished, we are given the opportunity to work on individual projects suited to our needs and desires. All types of clothing have been completed during the course — underwear, sport clothes, house and street dresses, children's clothing, evening gowns, and household articles. We also make things for the school such as shower curtains, gym uniforms, etc. We have made lined curtains for our dining room, and orange plaid ones for our electrical kitchen. We also make the linens for our dining room.

We are grateful to Mrs. Fiske and Miss Cummings of the School Committee and to teachers of the High School who have taken an interest in our work and have themselves given to us or gathered clothing from their friends to give to us to remodel. This has been one of our very successful and worth-while projects.

During our course we study clothing budgets, so that we may know how to dress, not only well, but economically. The care of clothing is brought in here.

Our art work is correlated with our clothing work. There we take up the selection of clothing in relation to our own particular type, and study costume design. We also learn that if we wish to look our best, good grooming must be emphasized.

In our study of textiles, we learn the characteristics of the different fibres, how to test them, and their uses in clothing and household articles.

As you see our clothing course teaches us not only how to sew, but how to select and care for clothing.

FOODS WORK

The study of foods I think is one of the most interesting subjects that we have in school. Our lessons in foods include nutrition in which we learn to plan balanced meals suited to every member of the family. We also study food budgets.

We start with lessons in the cooking of cereals, vegetables, meat, fish, salads, cakes, pastry, cookies, etc. Then with this and our knowledge of nutrition as a foundation we learn to plan and serve meals first as a class, then as a small group, and at the last as a group of two girls without any supervision. We plan the menu, estimate the cost, buy the supplies, make out a work plan, which includes the cleaning up such as sweeping the floors, washing towels, and table linen, defrosting the refrigerator and sweeping and dusting the dining room, prepare and serve the meal to which we invite teachers, parents, and classmates.

Some of the interesting projects during the year are the Christmas tea, the School Committee dinner, and sometimes on the day of a faculty meeting a tea room with a cashier, waitresses and workers in the kitchen. The Senior girls have the honor of serving the School Committee dinner. This year the menu consisted of fresh fruit cup, French onion soup, baked ham with cheese sauce, stuffed baked potatoes, carrot strips, celery strips, ripe and green olives, peas, yeast rolls, Toll House dessert and coffee.

We are very fortunate in having such excellent equipment. The laboratory has four kitchen units and in between the laboratory and the dining room is another unit which is our electrical kitchen.

In foods work as well as the other subjects we have home projects to do. The girls are given suggestions in buying, planning, preparing and serving the food over a period of a week or more. All of this is useful as the girls of today are the home-makers of tomorrow.

ACADEMIC WORK

In our academic work we have English, Science, Mathematics, Social Studies, Consumer Education, Store Service, and Retail Selling.

In our work in English our aims are to develop skill in writing and speaking, and to develop appreciation of good literature. We take every type of letter writing that will be useful to us in life. For oral practice we organize the class as a club, elect a chairman and secretary, and have practice each week in giving talks before the class. This develops poise and confidence, gives us ability to think "on our feet" and to take criticism with the right spirit.

The first year in Science we take subjects that are closely related to food projects and to the maintenance of a sanitary and comfortable home. Some of the subjects studied are bacteriology and the part that it plays in preserving food. We study yeasts and molds, food values, and food requirements. The human system is studied in relation to its use of food. We also study the preservation of health in the home and community. The second year's Science consists of a study of acids, bases, and salts to develop the ability to use them in bringing about the right reactions in home situations without danger to the individual, equipment, or material. Water, heat, air, and light are studied in their relation to the home. An application of science knowledge is made to bread-making, milk, soda, baking powders, and other foods as well as to textiles, and metals. We also have a unit on cosmetics in which we learn simple formulas and values of home-made products compared with many products on the market.

In our Social Studies we study personal, community and vocational civics. We have a unit on building character and personality in which we study and discuss desirable personality traits and good manners. We also study United States history and current history.

In our Mathematics, we correlate the work with our household problems, study household and personal budgeting, and factors involved in careful buying and investing.

In our related subjects we try to confine our work to activities that will help us prepare for a useful and happy home life.

HOME HYGIENE and CHILD CARE

This afternoon I'd like to tell you of the types of work that we do in Miss Fleming's class.

The first year we took up first aid and home hygiene. In the first aid class we learned how to take care of wounds such as leg or arm injuries or different kinds of bites. In case of a bad cut we were taught how to stop the bleeding until the doctor arrived.

In home hygiene we learned how to care for the sick, to plan our home so that it would be healthful and also how to make our home a more cheerful one.

The second year we took up child care. In this work we learned how to bring up a child in the correct way. Miss Fleming taught us how to bathe the baby, the proper kind of clothes to put on him, and the kind of food we should feed him. She also taught us what type of toys the young child enjoys playing with, how many hours of rest he should have, and how to protect him from childhood diseases. And if a child has the proper diet and is brought up the correct way, he will not get many of these diseases.

The third year we took up family relationship. We learned how to plan the family budget and how to get the proper foods, even though the income is not a large one.

Miss Fleming teaches us how to care for our home and how to make it a happy one. By making our home a happy one, we need the cooperation of all the members of the family from mother and dad, brother and sister, and all, down to the tiny baby. The brother and sister relationship is a very important one, for if brothers and sisters do not get along very well the house will not be a very pleasant one to live in. Also the parents ought to cooperate in bringing happiness and cheer to their family and home.

I think that the work we are learning from Miss Fleming's teaching is going to help us in making for ourselves a happy future.

HOUSEHOLD MECHANICS

In home laundry we learn the use of equipment, points in buying, procedure in laundering, kinds of soaps, bluing and starches and their uses. Much stress is put on ironing and pressing, especially the pressing of wool. We launder our school table linens for practice.

In house care we learn the types of houses such as the Northern Colonial, the French provincial, and others. We also learn selection of a site for a home bringing in these points; costs, contour of land, drainage, neighborhood, access to church, school, stores and place of business, water supply and sewage system.

We go on walks to find the different types of houses around the school. We select a plan of a house at moderate price, collect pictures of furniture and show their placement on floor plans which we have drawn.

In handcraft we knit scarfs and pocketbooks, crochet lace and handkerchief edgings and learn embroidery stitches.

In household mechanics we study paints, varnishes, stains, enamel, lacquers, the waxing of floors, repairing of linoleums, re-upholstering of furniture, and repairing of window and door screens. This is but a small part of our work. This year we have finished two model rooms, bedroom and living room.

The boys of the wood shop set up the rooms, made the bed and dressing table, coffee table and tray and another small table. We greatly appreciate the work they have done.

Class B upholstered the bed, made the bedspread, skirt for dressing table and stool, draperies for the windows, papered the walls and painted the wood work in the bedroom. The colors are green and yellow with a touch of coral. It is a room in which any girl should take great pride.

Class A stained and upholstered the davenport and two chairs which were discarded pieces of furniture from the teachers' room, painted the woodwork, and papered the walls of the living room. One of the girls in art class painted an outdoor scene for the back of the living room window. The color is coral rose with a bit of green and yellow. In the bedroom we have pale pink roses and in the living room yellow roses, a gift from the mother of one of our girls.

We have also painted the wood work in our electrical kitchen.

Vocational Training for Boys in Greenfield High School

THE Greenfield Vocational School is divided into two parts, the Unit Trade Machine Shop division and the General Vocational division. The General Vocational division includes general metal work, automobile repairing, printing, woodworking, and household arts. The instructors in all subjects have been approved by the State before being contracted. The advisory committees appointed to assist in the administration of these departments have carried out their work splendidly and with great success.

Before choosing a shop in the Vocational School, the ninth grade boys are given tests to determine their ability and aptitude for shop work. These tests are the Stenquist Assembly Test, in which the boys have to assemble the parts of various mechanisms, and the MacQuarrie Test of Mechanical Ability, which tests the mechanical ability of the individual. These tests determine the shop for which the individual is best suited. They are taken together with the usual standard achievement tests.

The Vocational Division of the State Department of Education and local machinists have aided the School Committee in planning and equipping the shops. Their assistance has resulted in excellent equipment being obtained from a reasonable budget. The equipment of the Machine Shop consists of seven engine lathes, one precision lathe, two drill presses, one shaper, two milling machines, a cylindrical grinder, one tool and cutter grinder, one surface grinder, wet tool grinder, one power hack saw, one arbor press, one gas hardening furnace, several vises and many hand tools. This equipment fully furnishes a general machine shop.

The boys in the Machine Shop have to draw their own projects in their drafting class. They learn to draw very accurately and to analyze the job as they proceed. Each job is studied step by step, which helps them when they get into the shop the next week. In this way the boys learn to carry through their projects from the planning, the raw material, to the finished job. The boys who take the Unit Trade Machine course for three years will, of course, graduate with a Unit Trade diploma. Those who take it for two years only will graduate with a Vocational diploma.

The Print Shop has acquired new and rebuilt equipment. The entire equipment consists of four job presses, and one cylindrical press, one lead cutter, one counting machine, racks, type, type cases, composing sticks, etc. Most of the printed forms used in the School Department and many of the town departments are printed here.

The Cabinet Shop has rather a large job to do. They have to repair various things about the building as well as carry on their own projects.

The Cabinet Shop has been refinished because of a fire which partially damaged it. Their entire list of equipment consists of four power saws, drill press, mortiser, surfacer, three lathes, wrenches, hand saws, vises, files, mitre boxes, grinder, and hand tools.

The General Metal Shop does a great deal of automobile repairing as well as metal working. They do fine jobs in welding, soldering, repairing and general metal work. Their list of equipment comprises two lathes, welding outfit, grinders, bending brakes, snips, blow torches, wrenches, soldering irons, paint spraying equipment, micrometers, dollies, etc. An electrical testing unit is also being added to this equipment.

The shops have all done good work and have saved the School Department a great deal. They have done jobs that were absolutely necessary and jobs that might not have been done if it were not for them. Some jobs have been absolutely necessary to the school, and in doing them the shops saved the town fifty percent or more. The cost includes material and power only. The boys receive the experience and instruction.

The Vocational School will have completed three years' work in June. Twenty-four three-year students will graduate with the Class of '39.

Out of the twenty-seven vocational graduates

last year, twenty have been known to have had employment at one time or another. Thirteen of these have had employment pertaining to the work for which they trained. There were three machinists, four automobile mechanics, four woodworkers, and two printers in this group. The other seven who found work took jobs in other fields for which they had no training, or in which no training was required. There is no record of the remaining seven's having jobs, but they may have found employment by this time. Fifty percent of the boys who graduated found jobs for which they had been trained. That speaks well for a school only three years old.

We see, therefore, that the Vocational School has been profitable in many ways. First, by the wide field of knowledge that is offered in four different trades. Second, by a system of testing to determine the fitness of the entrant. This eliminates anyone who has no ability in mechanical work. Third, by the close supervision of the State Department of Education, the local school authorities, and representatives of local industry. Fourth, by making it possible for the town to save approximately fifty percent on work done in the shops. Fifth, by a placement service which helps the boys to be placed in the industrial field for which they have been trained.

Greenfield High School's Part In Preparing for Effective Service

CHAIRMAN: To give a general idea of various phases of the work of the Greenfield High School in preparing for effective service, these students have been selected from the Commercial Club.

Miss Pickwell, how large a part do you think personality plays in office work today?

Miss Pickwell: A good personality creates a pleasant atmosphere in the office and a friendly feeling towards your fellow-workers. Speed and accuracy can be accomplished after one becomes acquainted with the office routine.

Chairman: What traits do you consider most important?

Miss Pickwell: Above all comes courtesy. This is the basic foundation for a successful secretary. Next come tact, loyalty to your employer, and personal appearance.

Chairman: How has this been worked into our curriculum?

Miss Pickwell: During the year, in the advanced shorthand class, we have had dictation, and have held many discussions on various phases of personality. We have also been privileged in having some members of the faculty speak to us. Each pupil compiled this material into an individual notebook to be used for future reference.

Special effort has been made this year to assist individual pupils in the technique of making application for a position.

All in all we have learned that the well-poised individual who knows how to do the right thing at the right time stands out in the crowd in any business situation.

Chairman: Has anything been done with special reference to the non-stenographic students?

Roy Lee: Yes, these students have a more varied curriculum. Their program includes Retail Selling, which teaches the fundamentals of salesmanship, and the principles of advertising, Economics and Commercial Law, which acquaint the pupil with the business conditions of the everyday world, and the use of common laws for self-protection, and Marketing, which consists of a study of Economic Geography, Commercial Arithmetic, and the principles of distribution. They also study the manipulation of the adding machines and the various duplicating machines.

The two divisions differ in that the stenographic department types for production while the non-stenographic types for speed.

Industrial History is still another field open for pupils who wish to study the Industrial History of the world. For anyone who wishes to take up accounting, there are two years of bookkeeping.

Business English is the underlying foundation for all these subjects. The pupils are taught tactful methods of answering and composing business correspondence, which include letters of application, complaint, adjustment, and selling letters. Correct spelling and punctuation are especially important.

In regard to Literature, the main requirement is one book report each month, including travel, biography and fiction.

A study is also made of prose, poetry, short plays and essays.

Chairman: What is the purpose of the new course, started this year, in practical office training?

Bruce Lucier: The purpose of this new course is to use the varied skills and information gained in Shorthand, Office Practice, and Typewriting, in situations as nearly like those found in real business as it is possible to create in school.

Chairman: How is the work divided for this class?

Bruce Lucier: The work is divided into individual projects covering 15 hours of work — 3 consecutive hours a day. Eight students are supervised by one teacher; two pupils work in Mr. Lawrence's office; two in Mr. Smith's office; one in Mr. Tillson's office, and one in Mr. Erickson's office.

Chairman: How was the material secured?

Bruce Lucier: The teachers in charge have relied on their actual office experience as far as possible for information in regard to their work, and have interviewed office workers.

Chairman: How is the work graded?

Bruce Lucier: The work is graded according to that which is acceptable by office standards, correctible, and unsatisfactory — which would have to be done over in an office.

Chairman: What benefits are derived from such a course?

Bruce Lucier: It shows the student his weaknesses in certain subjects and gives him a review of the principles of bookkeeping and mathematics. It has assisted in developing a sense of responsibility on the part of the student, and has shown him whether or not he can work successfully with others. It adds to his self-confidence and will be a guide for teachers in determining which factors in the pupil's training need to be most strongly stressed.

Chairman: Have we definite requirements and standards for these subjects?

Miss Prusik: To graduate from the commercial curriculum, the last two years must be strictly devoted to commercial subjects.

As far as individual subjects are concerned, pupils taking typewriting must type at least 40 words a minute for 10 minutes with not more than 5 errors. They must also have a knowledge of how to type office forms, set up letters and tabulate material in a manner acceptable to business. They have to be able to use the various adding and calculating machines, and the certificates awarded in filing and visible records are quite worthwhile.

In senior Shorthand the pupils must be able to write 100 words a minute for 5 minutes with a minimum of five errors.

Retail Selling requires a sales talk lasting 55 minutes given orally in front of the class.

Superior students who are recommended for stenographic positions are designated with a star on the graduation program. This means that their final average is A or B in all major commercial subjects.

Class History

TIME — 4039.

PLACE — A large excavation in a wild desolate part of section 78, formerly of the U. S. of America.

CHARACTERS — Professor Areky and Professor Ology.

PROPERTIES — Big piles of dirt, stacks of musty old books, and a billygoat (This last might be considered a character but acts rather like a wastepaper basket. It has been decided that he should be a property.)

ACTION — The two professors are devouring, with their eyes, old volumes, while the goat is actually devouring several of the more priceless ones.

Prof. Ology: Look! Areky, what has the old goat got over there? Why, this is a new one! It is called "The Exponent Annual." Now what on earth can that be?

Prof. Areky: It's filled with pictures of boys and girls, and here is some writing. Look! this says: "History of the Class of 1939." Now this is just what we want, history. Listen, I'll read it to you.

"Remember our 'Sophomore Daze' when we entered G.H.S. in the far distant fall of 1937? How insignificant our upper-classmen made us feel, but time certainly flew, and now we're the sophisticated Seniors.

"Enthusiastic, we lost no time in electing our able, perennial president, Ralph Gilman, who even stood out as our prominent member then; Kleanthy Metaxas and Edson Crafts were Vice-Presidents; Elena Ferrante, Secretary, and Gloria Cerrato, Treasurer.

"Of course we couldn't forget the Sophomore Dance given in our honor by the Juniors where the only obligations were not to play hide-and-seek among the cornstalks and take only one serving of ice cream. That was the year in which Lillian Maniatty made our class shine when she won first prize in the Alpha Beta Pi Amateur Show with her clever dancing and imitations.

"Weren't we glad when we gaily tripped into our second year as jolly Juniors and started off with a bang by placing the heavy burden of the presidency on Elena Ferrante's shoulders and by giving the white-collar jobs to Ralph Gilman and Gloria Cerrato? Laurence Spencer took over the Secretary's book, and Norma Gibson kept the financial records. Our first responsibility was to welcome the bewildered Sophomores by ushering them into our learned institution with the Sophomore Reception. Again our class talent proved itself when 'Russ' Elmer ran off with first prize in the Alpha Beta Pi Amateur Show. Then we sponsored the S. A. S. Valentine Dance, and 'Rosy' Minott supplied the music. Ah, yes! 'Ski America First' — well, the picture was good, but the financial results! Perhaps we shouldn't dwell too long on the subject, but we were certainly 'in the hole' long enough. Our class introduced the Candid Camera Shows in our Junior year. These presented 'Highlights of G. H. S.,' which included football games and numerous other 'off the record' pictures. We couldn't begin to enumerate all the successes of the musical organizations throughout our school years, but we must mention 'Campus Capers,' the excellent variety show which the Band and Glee Club presented in 1938.

"As Seniors we were by no means as gaily impetuous as during the preceding years, yet we were definitely more suave and consciously proud of our elevated position. That year the first thing we did was to choose, again, Ralph Gilman as President to lead our class through its final year. Elena Ferrante and John Walker went in as Vice-Presidents, Ruth Kimball as Secretary, and Mary Jean Carpenter as Treasurer. "Growing Pains," our Senior play, not only made the treasury rise considerably but also afforded much fun for both audience and amateurs. Didn't Gloria Cerrato and Howard Carrier make the perfect mother and father? How odd! Remember the scene where 'Ray' Fournier hauled off and hit burly Edward Billings, the cop? Carle Ellis played the Romeo well and certainly tried to respond to some of Mary Jean Carpenter's advances, but Ruth Chapin came along with her captivating charms, and everyone else sort of faded into the background. There was an excellent supporting cast, and everyone had a lot of fun. Under the patronage of S. A. S. our class managed the successful Football Dance in honor of our battered heroes. Our next efforts for financial gain were made through the cooperation of Laurence Spencer and Howard Carrier — camera fiends — who presented 'G. H. S. Daze,' another of our 'local films' depicting life around G. H. S. 'Hearts of the Campus' presented by the musical organizations proved their abilities, and through the hard work of Marion Holmes, 'Bud' Gilmore, 'Joe' Dwyer, Bernard Cotton, and Mildred Dimond the Band obtained their new uniforms. Remember the annual Delta Sigma Rho and Alpha Beta Pi Dances where every girl looked like a page from 'Vogue,' and the boys from 'Esquire'? (Not the jokes.) Our intellectual side proved itself when Edward Billings and John Atwood entered the oratorical contest, and Fred Radavich won the essay contest. Then came final exams, (we don't know how many skins were returned to the sheep — through various twists of fate), the Banquet, Graduation Exercises, and the ever-successful Hi-Y Commencement dance with John Atwood on the tickets and Ralph Gilman on the orchestra committee. (incidental)

"So looking back briefly, we really have reason to be proud of our class, the people in it, and the things they have accomplished. But before coming out of our reverie, we must not fail to mention those outstanding athletes of ours. At the fair our efficient cheerleaders spurred the Track Team on to victory with the whole-hearted support of the student body. Capt. John Walker led his team through a successful season with the spectacular help of Harold Forbes and Harold Myers. 'Al' Faille was the deserving captain of the basketball stars. Also the girls' team with 'Greta' Alger and Ruth Nichols made one of the best records G. H. S. has for its name."

Prof Ology: How very interesting! This is a valuable piece of historical manuscript, and I'm sure it has much bearing on Theory 458. So bring it along. Amazing! Amazing!

Class Prophecy

SCENE: Greenfield County Courthouse.

TIME: As far in the future as the action warrants.

CHARACTERS: Judge Wormwit Brittlebrane

Miss Easle E. Bribed (Chief witness)

The case is already in progress, and only the testimony of the chief witness remains.

Judge Brittlebrane: And now, Miss Bribed, let us have the story in your own words. Tell us exactly what you saw and be careful not to forget any little details which may have any bearing, no matter how slight, on the case.

Miss Bribed: Well, Judgy-wudgy, we girls, that is "Dotty" Snow, Elza Joost, Geneva Brooks, Beatrice Croutworst, you know, the girl that made sauerkraut worst, and Cora Klaus, the "Pavlova of Radio City," —

Judge Brittlebrane: Pardon me, but I'd like to ask a question. What's a ballet dancer doing in Radio City? Why, you couldn't hear or see her!

Miss Bribed: Well, isn't this a small world! "Anyhoo," we went into that new Beauty Culture Salon, operated by Lucy Foley and Marion Primeau, who specialize in pastel pedicures and face lifting. Well, I was operated on; I mean, I finished first. So I waited outside in my new Chabot speedster, which was designed by Chabot, Dagilus, and Ducharme (Leroy).

From "Beernose" Bassett's Cafe across the street I could hear the discordant strains of Ralph Gilman's "Harmony Pioneers," featuring "Bud" Gilmore, the dancing waiter, and "Joe" Dwyer, singing the songs his father taught him not to sing.

A little way down the street a group of W. P. A. workers could be seen looking into a vacant hole, supposedly meditating on philosophical matter. Among these workers I'm sure I recognized George Teague, Paul Pankievich, "Al" Staheleck, "Kid" Volpe, "Baldy" Ahearn, "Huckleberry" Zeimer, Mason Batchelder Ariel, and "Buck" Zentgraf. There were twelve men the day before, but three got killed in the 5 o'clock rush. The present workers were pondering whether to use their so-called energy to brush the termites off their shovels or suffer the consequences.

On the street corner stood "Big George" Markle, the meanest man in town, bullying little newspaper boys into giving him their candy and kicking old ladies in the shins as they got off the new "MacDonald and Moore" buses.

Riding along the curbing was "Butch" Van Hall on his latest invention, the automatic butt collector. Because the machine hadn't been perfected, "Al" Gray was running along behind, picking up what the collector missed.

Suddenly I heard a loud commotion. Coming up Main Street were a mass of angry workmen, carrying banners and placards. At their head was "Fred" Radavich, the prominent labor radical, carrying the largest banner which read, "Crowningshield Nut and Bolt Company has gone screwy. This is unfair to organized labor." Directly behind him were Bernard Cotton, George "Sunshine" Lapointe, and Donald Beebe who carried placards which read, "Myer's Sweat Shop pays insufficient wages," "Rockwood Chemical Company works its employees overtime," and "Dwight Lyman makes ten thousand dollars a week; why can't I make ten?"

They advanced up Main Street, passed Sauter and Maniatty's Pool Room, Greene's Ski Shop and First Aid School, the Cash twins' Restaurant, Knowlton and Hosford's music store — "The Blast Furnace," passed Ellis' Foot Comfort Bazaar, and Deane's Debutante Dress Shoppe, until finally they stopped in front of the bank. They kept shouting "Down with Capitalism" until the president of the bank, Edward Cairns; vice-presidents, Carson, Carroll, and Burgess; and teller, Crosby, came out to try to stop them. As soon as the workmen saw this, they went wild. They shouted, "If Cairns hasn't the solution on hand by tomorrow, we'll go to Governor Atwood. We thought the crime wave was over when they hung Newhall, public embezzler number one." Then they threw over-ripe vegetables at the object of their threats, and the fight was on. Some sailors on shore leave, "Art" Phillips, Leonard Harris, and "Doug" Danforth, hitched up their pants and jumped in. "Muscle" Savage, the weight lifter, began to swing his mighty fists, and Grogan was swinging too (I had the radio on in my car). By this time some one had called the local police department, and Officers Berchman, Clapp, Forrestall, Kimball, and Kavanaugh, led by the Chief, Robert Emmet Burns, came on the rim — if you can call three miles an hour running! The Sheriff from Bernardston, "Josh" Billings, was about to hop in when he was suddenly besieged by a group of female autograph hounds urged on by Barbara Belding, who had just made her debut in scalp-hunting, and Dorothy Blanker, who is working now for her master's degree in Husbandry. By this time things had really started; in fact they were flying, and a crowd of spectators had formed.

The girls came stumbling out of the beauty shop with mud packs on their faces, and Barbara Helbig, Rollena Tetreault, and Jacqueline McKinnon, the shop operators, followed.

A cute little tot with red hair wandered up to the car crying, "Have you seen my daddy? I want him. I think he's in the fight." When I asked him what his name was he replied, "I'm Harold Forbes, Jr. 'n I wanna find my daddy." Huh, cute little kid.

I was going to continue my conversation with Junior, but my attention was abruptly distracted by a car which came careening around the corner of Carpenter's Lane. At the steering wheel was "Bill" Shumway, while on the roof of the car was Howard Carrier, grinding a huge "movie" camera. Clinging dangerously to the spare tire was "Laury" Spencer, with his "Argus." Before they stopped, they nearly collided with "Ruthy" Chapin, Olive Smith, Doris Graves, and Jean Lawver, who were going, in "Ruthy's" Ford, to a rummage sale for the benefit of underprivileged guinea pigs.

The police could do nothing until the militia, captained by Russell Elmer, who was assisted ably by Lieutenants Faille and Stebbins, arrived on the scene. The people were soon quieted, and the "hotheaded" radicals were taken to the "cooler."

Judge Brittlebrane: And then what happened?

Miss Bribe: Well, too late, the ambulance, driven by Raymond Dew, and an army of nurses arrived. The white uniformed girls appeared so much alike that I could hardly tell them apart. But, I did distinguish Esta Catlin, "Dot" Keller, June Loveland, Athal Ayers, Marguerite Mac-Namara, Isabelle Fiske, Rita Grover, Anita Lambert, Norma Jones —

Judge Brittlebrane: Hey, just a minute, our court stenographer, Bruce Lucier, is running out of paper, and Roy Lee, our office boy, has got his fingers stuck up in a wad of gum so he can't get him a new supply.

Miss Bribe: That's all right. I'll buy him a new pad out of the money you're "gonna" pay me for this story.

Judge Brittlebrane: Ahem, proceed with the case.

Miss Bribe: Well, the nurses took charge of the wounded, and Ralph Chickering, Bernard Scully, Raymond Rogers, and his little brother, Francis, took care of the nurses. Oh, I might mention I noticed two or three social workers among the crowd. Perhaps you've heard of Miss Cerrato, Miss Trumble, Miss Fiske, Miss Gibson, and Miss Barger. They just came back from South Africa where they were working among the Hunky Dory tribe trying to teach them the evils of drink.

Judge Brittlebrane: And now, Miss Bribe, that you've finished with your testimony the case is about ready to be closed, I can now refer it to the special jury which has been selected because of this unusual case. On this jury may be found men and women from all walks of life. For the benefit of Stephen Bednardski, Eleanor Pickwell and the other newspaper reporters, I shall proceed to list and identify them. They are as follows: Head Jurymen, Russell Carter, a prominent producer of pretty, pink, palatable, pasty pills for pale, poky, plump people; Beatrice Beaulac, the beautiful belle of the bountiful Bosworth ballroom; Frank Pupek, delivery boy for Shepherd's Funeral Home; Ethel Brumelle, author of that new book, "How to Make a Home — or Break It"; William Conway, head coach of sports at Gill Grammar School; Donald Day, chief mechanic and clock-watcher at Whalen's gas station and "Bide a Wee" Restroom; Marjorie Jones, proprietor of Joneses' Boarding House, famous for its Mulligan stew and gruesome hash; Alfred Lamery, employee in the Tap and Die boiler room — blowing off steam; Elaine Kilbourne, latest stand-in for Olive Oil in the popeye cartoons; Donald Martin, stage boy at the "Old Howard" in Boston, now under the management of John Murphy; Florence "Dempsey" Strange, a cattle rustler at "Frank Jacob's Ranch"; Harold Ranger, head manager of the kiddie car department of "Betty" Carrier's "Tiny Tot's Wonderland"! Erainne Pirog, the notorious "marrying millionairess" who has lost three husbands; Albert Beaulieu, the man of difficult decisions. He can't make up his mind whether to marry Sophie Wisnewski, Mary Bompastore, or Margaret Doyle, and he keeps all their hearts beating at once; Doris Olsen, active assistant to Purrington and Purrington, osteopaths, who advertise, "It isn't how it looks; it's how it feels"; Eloise Van Hall, the girl who started the 1942 heat wave across New England.

Judge Brittlebrane: It is up to these twelve representative jurymen to decide the fate of the defendants.

Miss Bribe: Oh, another thing, Judge, I would like to submit a petition which was drawn up by the people of Greenfield. I don't know whether it's in legal form or not, but I put all the information I could get about each person. Do you want to read the names aloud? They may influence the jury.

Judge Brittlebrane: All right, I'll do that little thing. I've got plenty of time. "We, the undersigned, agree that the instigators of the recent labor uprising should not be prosecuted by the law." Sidney Drew, operator C-5 of "Dick Tracy Secret Service Patrol"! Caroline Zak, school "marm" in public school 16, New York, precinct two; "Alec" Owseichik, Government building and loan inspector in Troy, N. Y.; Kleantly Metaxas, foreign interpreter at Ellis Island; John Walker, professional football player on the Gutkowski Indians, who win all their games because they bully the other players between halves; William Babits, "Bookie" for Suffolk Downs racetrack; Karl Merz, the hermit who swore he wouldn't shave until he found his last year's fishing tackle in his beard; Adeline Lahoski, one of the main stockholders in "Lahoski's Five and Ten"; Marjorie Roberge, the girl, who with Marguerite Alger, Muriel Schatz, Lucille Viens, Lorraine Aker, and Ada Bessette, formed the "Don't Date Dumb Dudes Club." They vowed never to marry and buried a husband apiece before the next year; Chester Mroz, the deep sea diver who nearly was eaten up last week by a brook trout. (Well, that washes him up); Robert Gilbert, owner and operator of Gilbert's Go-gettem Mouse Trap Establishment; Catherine Casey, famous as the producer of "Lettice Coon and 'Cabbage' Casey's Mayonnaise"! June Hobson, the model for silk stockings who gives a demonstration with every purchase; Ann Metelica, the girl who can't keep any "boy friends" because every time she goes out with one, she gives him a smack in the face; Frank Frary —

Miss Bribe: Oh, I forgot, his name should be crossed out. He got in a checker game with Kenneth Somes and hasn't been heard from since.

Judge Brittlebrane: All right, now, let's see, where was I? Oh, Yeah, Marion Robichaud, secretary of the "Merrily We Live Society," which has Doris Merriott as its president; Norman Tower, the star who revived the "movie" industry when Frankenstein had to retire because of old age; Fabian Trudeau, nightwatchman at Green River Cemetery; Helen Gadomski, roller skating instructor at Revere Beach; Stephen Niedzwiedz, inventor of non-skid tiddlywinks; Joseph Green, a horse doctor who specializes in hoofcures; Chester Hunt, caretaker of the Life Preservers at Gill Navy Yard; Mary Malloy, the understudy of Sophie Tucker who is most likely to succeed; Stanley Kuyzjo, who was working in the Ford automobile factory until they caught him tightening nut 13 instead of nut 14; Edward Yourga, surgeon for sick automobiles; William Smith, the stand-in for Bill Powell in the "Thin Man" pictures; Georgia Stasinopoulos, the assistant manager of S. S. Kresge's Greenfield branch; Harry Vetterling, the principal of Greenfield High School the took Mr. Smith's chair); Lena Barry, she and Anna DeNofrio are opposed to equality between men and women. The men have enough privileges all ready without giving them more!! Caroline Dzierzonaski, head waitress in Maloney's Tavern. She won't drink anything but soda water because her heart belongs to "pop" (daddy); Walter Ostroski, drummer in the U. S. Marine Band; Margaret McCaffrey, who still treads up and down the aisles at Woolworth's; Bernice Murray, co-partner in Murray and Schultz Cigar Store; Dorothea Richason, writer of "Advice to the Heartbroken" or "Why Old Maids Never Leave Home" column in the "Daily Blurp"; Octavia Peters, a maid in the home of "Joe" Louis; Erba Thompson, instructor in a cooking school for old maids who want to catch a man by approaching his heart through his stomach; Warren Welch, vegetable peddler on the East Side; Alice Kalinowski, proprietress of a dressmaking shop on Park Avenue; Helen Macko, a horseback riding instructor at Brownie's; Josephine Volpe, model for United Artists; Mildred Colucci, stewardess in a "Compressed Air Liner"; Roland Chevalier —

Miss Bribed: Oh, I forgot, cross his name off, too. He ate too much pie in a pie-eating contest. He won the prize, but, when they told him it was a dozen pies, he died of fright.

Judge Brittlebrane: Well, now let's see if I can finish this petition. James Lawor, soda-jerker at "Eye-Squirtum" Drug Store; Catherine Harris, the novel "Jitterbug" of Harlem; Doris Wilder, instructor in sewing for Singer Sewing Machine Co.; Josephine Zastawny, head librarian in the Boston Public Library; Mildred Rau, buyer for Greenfield's Vogue Shop; Marylyn Loomis, just arrived from Paris introducing a new coiffure; Catherine Morell, sole owner of a laundry for the C. C. C.; Virginia Corbin, assistant to Walt Disney in a new feature entitled, "These Were the Innocent"; John Behaylo, stock clerk in the Holyoke Grower's Outlet; Glenna Beck, nightclub hostess with Muriel Prefontaine in Millers Falls.

Judge Brittlebrane: Gentlemen of the jury, now that you have heard all the evidence, you may retire to the anteroom, and we shall await your decision.

Miss Bribed: Oh, "Britty."

Judge Brittlebrane: What! Are you still here?

Miss Bribed: Yes, I thought you might like some company. Isn't it peculiar how some people migrate to certain centers in the courtroom? For instance, look at the mass of boys grouped around Audrey Larabee, Mildred Dimond, Ann Gilmore, Ruth Kimball, Martha McLaughlin, Margaret Overgaard, and Dorothy Maley.

Judge Brittlebrane: I don't see anything peculiar about it. I think it's pretty sensible myself. That's a very select group if you ask me, and I wouldn't mind being down there myself.

Miss Bribed: "Dot" Maley is lovely, isn't she?

Judge Brittlebrane: Lovely, say that doesn't half describe her or any of the others. Speaking of groups, look at the crowd of women around that handsome young engineer, James Golden. He has to fight Marion Bruce off with his right hand, Beverly Hartwell with his left, while Mary Evarts and Julia Douglas attack him from the front and back. If he isn't killed in the rush, when husky Mildred Turner and "Dot" Cate reach him, he can consider himself lucky.

Miss Bribed: You should have seen the room when Elena Ferrante, Doris St. Denis, and Betty Streeter came in. The boys were nearly frantic; you couldn't keep them in their seats. Why Raymond Babits, John Perry, and Carlyle Allen got up like a group of gallant Romeos and with low sweeping bows even offered their seats to the ladies. I thought we'd seen the last of chivalry when the W. P. A. introduced the age of shovelry, but I guess I was mistaken.

Judge Brittlebrane: Didn't you get a good laugh when Ezekiel Wood, that dude and notorious city slicker, who still uses bear grease to slap his hair down, escorted Winsome Woods to her seat?

Miss Bribed: I thought I'd laugh more when I saw Walter White bring in six girls with him. I wonder how he does it? He must have an appealing personality to get Shirley Richardson, Jesse Wisniewski, and Gladys Parda on one arm and Noreen Kelly, Claire Liston, and Marguerite Leighton on the other.

Judge Brittlebrane: Quiet in the back of the courtroom! Can't you see I'm busy discussing the case with an important witness? If the officer in charge will get the names of the loudest disturbers of the peace, I'll send police-woman Tullio to try a little jiu jitsu on them. What? What were those names? Oh, Stanton, Baronas, De Long, Lucas, Vitro, Phelps, Prusick, and Faneuf. (Aside) The women outnumber the men ten to one in court today. So we've got to keep them quiet to give the men a chance. Well, let's continue our discussion.

Fred Harris and Virginia Barnes made an exceptionally nice couple. Didn't they? I hear Fred's boxing in the "Golden Gloves Tournament" this week. As I remember Fred in school, he was quite an athlete. By the way, what year did you graduate from G.H.S.?

Miss Bribe: Why, I finished way back in 1939.

Judge Brittlebrane: You did! Say, were you in that class with Eleanor Walker, and Ruth Nichols, Ann Kamienski, and Elza Joost — ?

Miss Bribe: Sure, why I remember you. You were that tall skinny guy with glasses that was in the Senior play.

Judge Brittlebrane: Yes, and you were that good looking little "jitterbug" who used to be in Mr. Jeffs' shows.

Miss Bribe: We ought to hold a class reunion some time and talk over things.

Judge Brittlebrane: How about holding a little reunion of our own tonight? I hear "Ed" Tourtellotte runs a nice little "hot spot" down in Worcester. He's got Viola Drugan and Lillian Maniatty dancing for him. So it must be good. Or, we could go to the "movies" and see Domenic Guglielmo, the second Rudolph Valentino, and Bernice Rushford in that great dramatic triumph entitled "If Heaven Can Wait, So Can You." or "She Was Only a Photographer's Daughter, But How She Developed." I've heard that those fine character actors, Gerald Flurie, Gladys Banach, Mary Pregony, and Lillian Weeks, are in the supporting cast, but I'm not quite sure.

Miss Bribe: That would be fine, Judge, but don't you think it would be much more fun to look up some of our old friends? I'd like to see how Frank Isles is making out with his lunch cart, or how John Wisnewski and Walter Czernich are doing in the flypaper business, or how Eleanor Metzler, Genevieve Aumand, and Eleanor Roberts are progressing in Girl Scout and 4-H Work. It would be interesting to see what each has become. Wouldn't you like to know whether Mary Varilly, Mary Harrington, Elsa Johnson, or Evelyn Powers had succeeded in establishing themselves in careers or whether they had become just housewives or old maids?

Judge Brittlebrane: I certainly would, but I've never had the time to look up any of them. However, here's the jury with its verdict. So I'll have to ask them for their decision. Gentlemen of the Jury, what is your decision? - - - hum - - - hum - - - very interesting. As the Jury has decided to drop the case, for reasons best known to themselves and several evil looking gentlemen in the back of the court, I declare this Court dismissed. (Aside) Don't forget our date.

Miss Bribe: Okay —

True Americanism - - How Best to Achieve It

“AMERICANISM is an unfailing love of country; loyalty to its institutions and ideals; eagerness to defend it against all enemies; undivided allegiance to the flag; and a desire to secure the blessings of liberty to ourselves and posterity.” It had its conception in men like Paul Revere, Benjamin Franklin, and George Washington and has mellowed through many trying years and times. It appeared at the battle of Bunker Hill; it was evident in Jackson’s defense of New Orleans; it was manifested in the courageous charge at San Juan hill; it prevailed at Belleau wood. The very essence of Americanism lies in peace, but it has mainly appeared in our armed conflicts. Now, although not engaged in a armed struggle, we increasingly look forward to its manifestations.

This is a troubled era. Carnage and havoc are taking their grizzly toll throughout this so-called civilized world. Introduced since the World War, there are several definitely harmful, radical elements which seek to undermine our indomitable spirit of Americanism. In the face of these threats it is imperative to ourselves and mankind to maintain and preserve, unshaken and unaltered, the institutions and beliefs upon which Americanism rests. Our forefathers fought with heroic determination for the vindication of their beliefs. Naziism, Fascism, and Communism throw their ominous shadows over the world. It is imperative that we combat their deliquescent influence with the same spirit our forefathers had.

We must, as a God-fearing, liberty-loving people, set an example not only to the people who are beginning to feel the harmful effects of these elements but also to those people who are, unfortunately, already oppressed by them. We have inherited a country uncontaminated by elements which seek to overthrow the ideals, principles, and institutions on which it is based; we must, similarly, transmit it. We have been bequeathed not only our democratic form of government but also the spirit of its founders. To combat Naziism, Fascism, and Communism, we must begin by making “our doorstep clean.” We must arouse to a high pitch that spirit of nationalism which tolerates no intruders; we must again make the world conscious of Americanism!

To do this, we must impart to every citizen of our beloved democracy a liberal education. The very nature of our government is based on the assumption that its citizens are well-educated. We must learn to think constructively for ourselves and to pass impartial judgments. For example, consider the merits and demerits of Naziism, Fascism, and Communism. Obviously these elements implant seeds of sedition and unrest in workers. One doesn’t have to be a clairvoyant to note their oppression of religion. It is plain that they stifle the rights of the individual to the exclusive benefit of the state. It is very evident that they are opposed to the Constitution and its Bill of Rights and to the Declaration of Independence with its assertion that “all men are created equal.” Dictators virtually proclaim themselves God. However, we must not reject them because of their obvious harmful effects. The good sometimes outweighs the bad. We must condemn them because we can see no good in them!

We are able to see and sense our manifold privileges and opportunities only by direct contrast and comparison with other countries. To develop an unwavering love for one’s country, a knowledge of its past is essential. We find ourselves taking an active part in government and respecting authority because of education. We judge quality entertainment according to our degree of mental development. The motion pictures that we see, the literature that we read, and the radio programs that we listen to, all give evidence of our education. Education is a prime factor in the development of Americanism.

As one reads, he sometimes notices criticisms of our government; local, state, and national. We must give evidence of clean, straight-forward government. Give the on-coming generation something to respect and look up to! We should at all times have sound, efficient government.

Also, I think more emphasis should be brought to bear on the commemoration of our national heroes and holidays. The latter are not participated in by everyone. They do not command the respect it seems they should. Instilling patriotism and reverence for American institutions in these ways would further develop Americanism.

The Dies Committee recently uncovered a new chapter in the field of un-American activities. It has been found that agents of Germany, Italy, and Russia are seeking to warp the minds of the youth and of the laborer of America. It seems that these agents have organized Bunds and clubs that pledge allegiance to foreign lands and rulers. It has been found that these organizations are directly sponsored by foreign capital. We should give our whole-hearted support to the Dies Committee. To seize agents of the proletarian powers before harm is done is a much better policy than to correct the harm done. Until we arouse such a spirit of Americanism as to make their positions untenable, we should prosecute instigators with full strength.

America leads the world in quality of her airplane products. This is also true in many other fields. We should devote more time and money in the interest of science. Leadership in the scientific field produces leadership of the nation. Humanitarian science should be promoted. By maintaining our high standard of living, we give the on-coming generation an American mark to strive for.

Education together with the development of sound character are the two chief means by which the spirit of Americanism must be aroused. Love of its principles, loyalty to country, and courage to defend it, all of these reflect upon character. Promote character-building activities such as the present Girl and Boy Scout organizations, provide suitable recreational areas, and develop a deep love for the clean out-of-doors in the on-coming generation, and you will build character. Courage, honesty, cleanliness of body, soul and mind—develop these and other principles of solid character, and you will develop Americanism!

We must instill in our generation that love of freedom, of order, of progress, and of civilization and that abhorrence of slavery, chaos, retrogression, and barbarism. We must again grasp that indomitable spirit of our forefathers; this generation must rediscover that clarity of vision, that tenacity of purpose, and that noteworthy determination of our forebears. Develop a deep-rooted patriotism, cultivate the sense of the aesthetic, of virtue, of religion, and a simple common-sensed philosophy—do these things, and you will achieve Americanism.

As I have said, we have been bequeathed not only our democratic form of government but also the spirit on which it is based. Americanism was born under fire, but it is now undergoing an ordeal in peacetime. The combat against Nazism, Fascism, and Communism must result in victory for Americanism. The Torch of Flander's Fields must be upheld, unwavering and undimmed!

Ivy Ode

Tune: Drink to Me Only With Thine Eyes

Ivy, green sprig of fertile youth,
Do thou e'er upward climb.
Searching to skies beyond for truth,
As nature's growth sublime.
In friendship's foliage deep entwine,
On stone of constancy.
Each leaf a vibrant spirit fine,
To touch infinity.

Ever climb higher to a dream,
So may we follow fast.
'Til by our faith the goal supreme
Success shall gleam at last.
Grow up with might, to God draw nigh
As we spread o'er earth's face.
Follow the ivy upward high;
Reflect a shining race.

— Raymond Arthur Fournier

Class Song

Tune: It's a Long Way to Tipperary

We have traveled on together
Through our happy high school days,
And our hearts are filled with sadness
At the parting of the ways;
Friendships ever loyal,
Comrades ever true,
We shall keep their mem'ries with us always,
And Greenfield High School's, too.

Now the time has come for parting;
We must say farewell, our Friend;
We are leaving you forever;
May your mem'ry never end!
You have helped us on our journey;
You have lent a friendly hand;
We shall always think of Greenfield High School,
The finest in the land.

... they used to call them "light companies"

But nowadays the electric companies bring much more than illumination to the homes of their customers. The little black wires that bring electricity to modern homes provide power and fuel for countless tasks. Thanks to electricity, the ugly, sooty kitchen stove has been replaced by a beautiful white, clean range that cooks quickly, safely and economically. Beside it stands the electric refrigerator, maintaining a constant cold month in and month out that keeps food fresh, makes ice cubes and frozen desserts. Electrically controlled furnaces have transformed cellars into recreation rooms. And so on. Today electricity is everyman's servant.
